MORE DEMOCRACY.

Another Convention of the Untrifled Bobs up.

Yesterday there was another gathering of the untrifled Democracy who hold their weekly State Conventions in this city.

The present crowd call themselves dyed-in-the-wool Democrats, so as not to be confounded by unthinking persons with the blow-in-the-bottle Bourbons who congregated here on Wednesday last. They were headed by Major Dennis of Washoe, the man who has been shooting four column newspaper phillipics at Mr. Harris, Chairman of the regular Democratic Central Committee.

The present Convention is regarded as an organization of bolters by the Democrats who held a convention here a few days ago. They claim however to have been reared in the cradle of Democracy and to have men on their Central Committee whose relatives were nurses and mid-wives in the Jackson and Jefferson families before the ancestors of Keating, Adams or Harris learned to read and write the language of the American commonwealth.

They claim that the ticket they put up will sweep the State with cyclonic power and precision and inaugurate a new era of peace, prosperity, and pure politics.

The Convention met with S. S. Sears of Washoe, Chairman, and Harry Day of Ormsby, Secretary. The hall was decorated with an American flag behind the Chairman and had the letters C. J. T. V. in green over his head. After a long platform, a good deal of which was a lively denunciation of the other Democratic platform, was read, John Dennis was nominated for Congress amid prolonged cheers.

He declined in a neat speech and nominated B. F. Reiley of Paradise. Attorney Jones of Washoe then nominated Theodore Winters in a speech that called forth loud cheers from the Convention. Winters was nominated by acclamation.

Supreme Judge, passed.

State Controller, D. H. Hall of Eureka.

Secretary of State, passed.

Attorney General, W. C. Grimes of Churchill.

State Treasurer, W. G. Thompson of Storey.

Surveyor General, passed.

Supt. of Public Instruction, F. S. Sears of Washoe.

State Printer, James Morris of Washoe.

Regent University, Long term.

Rev. Hyslop of Ormsby.

Regent University, Short term; A. H. Wiseman of Elko.

During the proceedings Timothy Connolly called for a resolution he had given to the Secretary. He wanted it read. The Convention at once slid on to other business, but Connolly insisted on being heard and there was great commotion. He finally made the Secretary admit that the committee had it and as soon as Connolly knew where it had died he subsided.

About twenty-five persons participated and they adjourned amid loud cheers.

DWIGHT EDWARDS,
L. H. BELL.

Dated September 12, 1894.

The action of Senator Jones in leaving the Republican party to ally himself with the Silver party, the Chicago Times says, is exactly what was to have been expected. It was the only logical course for him to pursue. Not until men shall gather like off thistles will silver be remonetized by the Republican party, and they waste their time and their efforts who strive to advance the cause of silver through the agency of the party of plutocracy.

The Lawn Party.

The gathering at Mrs. Edwards' last evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Nighters, was a very decided success, and quite a handsome sum was realized for charity.

HOW FOLEY WAS KILLED.

The Defendant in the Murder Case Describes the Scene.

Mrs. Hartley stated in her testimony at Reno that she endeavored to have Foley sign a paper acknowledging the paternity of the child etc., she continued. Mr. Foley came into the room and seated himself on the lounge, she sat in the rocking chair facing him. She told him she had been expecting him every day and asked him what decision he had arrived at concerning her. He replied that his decision was the same, that she must go to Salt Lake and that in a few days he would follow her and make arrangements. She told him that the paper must be signed and witnessed, that she would only ask him to do what was right and no more. He replied that he would not trust anyone in that matter. She suggested some mutual friend, but he would not consent. She told him she had consulted Mr. Dodge without mentioning any name.

He advanced towards her and struck her twice on the shoulder saying, "why have you told Mr. Dodge, if you make trouble for me I will buy some men with a few twenty dollar pieces to testify to anything." She retreated from him and took the pistol from the shelf, and he still followed her. She backed into the rear room and he was standing over her with the chair upraised, and she fired the second shot while crouching down. He dropped the chair to the floor and straightened up saying, "that settles it, it has gone through me," She replied, saying "I am sorry you have driven me to this. I will give myself up to the officer." He answered, "No! no! Wait." She opened the door for him to go and he went out on the landing; she followed, saying, "I will give myself up." He motioned her back, saying "No! no! Go back." He went down the stairs, the defendant following. She saw Mr. Dodge in the hall and went directly to him, told him what she had done and requested him to go at once for the Sheriff.

At about 3:15 o'clock Dr. P. T. Phillips went to Mrs. Hartley's side and spoke to her. He then spoke to Judge Cheney who immediately excused the defendant from the stand. She had been on the witness stand five hours, and when she was finally excused she was almost exhausted. Notwithstanding her condition, she never uttered a word of complaint, although it was plain to be seen that she was suffering intensely during the last part of her examination. She was not spared during her cross-examination and at times she was compelled to strain every nerve to retain her calmness and answer the questions intelligently. Her condition is a pitiable one; it was remarked various times that few men could go through the ordeal that Mrs. Hartley passed through yesterday and hold themselves to as close a line as she did in her testimony.

Dr. P. T. Phillips then took the stand and testified as to Mrs. Hartley's physical condition, and that she would soon become a mother.

Reno, Sep. 14.—At 11:30 A. M. and shortly after Woodburn completed his rigid cross-examination, Mrs. Hartley rose from her chair trembling, and rushed from the courtroom, crying and sobbing. The Sheriff escorted her to an adjoining room, where she fell on the floor, frothing at the mouth. Recess was then taken till 1:30. The morning session was devoted by the State's attorneys to reviewing testimony already reported in an endeavor to shatter her testimony on direct examination, which they failed to do, and Woodburn, with a deep drawn sigh, said "that's all."

Her lawyer, Goodwin, then brought forward a chair for her to identify, which she said Foley raised over his head and threatened her with. It was at this point that Mrs. Hartley began to sob and rushed from the courtroom. Her hysterical sobs could be plainly heard in the courtroom.

Oraha railroad men are much alarmed over a discovery of what they regard as a black list being worked by all the western railroads. Since the strike, men seeking the employment are requested to bring a clearance from their last employer. The men claim that all companies are using paper on which to write these recommendations that has a figure of a crane worked in it, and while the writing may indicate that the bearer is all right, the position of the animal on the paper really determines the applicants standing. The men are much alarmed.

A Frightful Accident.

Yesterday afternoon while J. N. Wallace was stacking hay at Gould's ranch he met with an accident that caused death in two minutes. It seems that he was up on the stack and the derrick fork caught on the derrick beam, when it suddenly let go or broke loose, and came directly toward Mr. Wallace. He tried to get out of the way, but was unable to do so, and one of the lines struck him in the breast penetrating the breast bone and entering the breast to a depth of four inches, tearing open the large vein emptying into the heart. He died almost immediately. Mr. Wallace was a highly respected citizen of this community, and his untimely death will be greatly regretted. He leaves a wife to mourn his loss.—Journal.

To see a Republican around town talking free coinage of silver when his party is against it, is very much like the Indian who could not find his wickiup. "Injun lost? Umph! Wickiup lost; Injun all right.—Journal.
